2. Citations and explanations

Reference is made to the following documents:

D1: EP-A-0130228

D2: EP-A-0641857

D3: EP-A-0572305

Document D1 discloses (abstract; page 3, line 18 to page 4, line 4; examples; claims) a method for producing raw sausage by an accelerated ripening process and with a rapid increase in the microorganism count of Lactobacillus by the addition of metallic salts.

Document D2 discloses (abstract; illustrations; claims) a method for producing raw sausage by an accelerated ripening process and with a rapid increase in the microorganism count of Lactobacillus.

Document D3 discloses (abstract; figure 2; claims) a method for producing raw sausage by an accelerated ripening process and with a rapid increase in the microorganism count of Micrococcus and/or Lactobacillus.

Document D1 is considered the prior art closest to the subject matter of claim 1.

The subject matter of claim 1 thus differs from the known method by the addition of folic acid and/or folates in an even distribution.

Therefore, the subject matter of claim 1 is novel (PCT Article 33(2)).

The problem to be solved by the present invention can thus be seen as that of providing an alternative method for stimulating natural biological processes and achieving improved quality in meat products that are to be produced. The solution to the above problem as proposed in claim 1 of the present application involves an inventive step (PCT Article 33(3)) because neither document D1 nor any of the other prior art documents contains anything that would suggest to a person skilled in the art a method with the technical features of claim 1.

Claims 2-4 are dependent upon claim 1 and thus likewise satisfy the PCT requirements with respect to novelty and inventive step.
